Welcome, Sophia Kim, Director of the Science Learning Institute! Sophia comes to Foothill College from Stanford University's Haas Center for Public Service where she was the High School Program Director, leading the High School Support Initiative, whose goal was addressing education inequity in local communities through tutoring and mentoring high school students. Sophia is a transplant from Boston where she spent almost 15 years working in the nonprofit youth work space, directing programs that primarily served Asian American youth from immigrant and low-income backgrounds, building youth leadership and supporting youth to effect positive change in their communities.

Sophia also has a commitment to anti-oppression education and change work through

Sophia has a bachelor's degree from Williams College, where she double-majored in biology and
